Barnstorming Wonderful
as a Pastime, Says Babe

By W. O. MCGEEHAN

Babe Ruth, the most pronounced bust of the late lamented world's series, returned from the great open spaces where he has been on a barnstorming expedition yesterday and reported by telephone to the Yankee offices. The prodigal outfielder reported rather sadly that he had to extend his stay in the open, but as far as the gate receipts were concerned and hinted that anything in the nature of a little fatted veal or even a plate of ham and beans would be highly appreciated.

The tour was an artistic success, however. The Babe played in seventeen games, and in the seventeen knocked out twenty-one home runs, scored thirty-five runs, and hit twenty-two home runs. The Babe, who was a member of the same company of trouper, made eleven home runs. But as the objective was to gather the wherewithal to finance the trip, the tour was a success, the winter, which is about to descend with considerable rapidity, the trip was not quite the success that the Babe anticipated.

According to the Babe, the entire barnstorming trip was made with a from the ends of the earth. On the variety team Turkey, Bermuda, Syria, Brazil, the United States, England, and the United States, and another regular, hails from San Francisco.

The team is being coached by W. R. Welch, a former British professional football player, who has coached for eighteen months and likes everything here except the way his Harvard pupils play soccer.

"But he's learning," he said to-day. "They're getting it. I think they've thought a quarter mile kick was the object of the game."

thing to brood over during the barnstorming trip. He was the most versatile of the variety team.

Also the Babe has begun to brood over the ravenlike "they never come back" which has come to his ears more than once during the season just closed.

When the season started the Babe was the most absolutely self-confident young athlete that ever drew down a healthy pay check. When the season finished he was a weedy, thin, and dejected young man. That perfect coordination which made him the champion of all

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—The delegation of former Yale football stars, headed by Walter Camp, Yale's best known gridiron mentor, came to New Haven to-day to aid the variety, but, because of the rain, Tad Jones refused to allow a scrimmage, and the coaches gave their attention to the team's training.

It was the first appearance of Mr. Camp this season. Louis E. Stoddard, chairman of the football committee; former Yale players, L. H. Bigelow, Ralph Bloomer, Paul Venable, and Arthur H. Stewart, Ted Lilly, George Goss, Foster Rockwell and Jack Owsley were among the old timers who took advantage of the holiday to visit New Haven, but they all regretted that they could not see the Ellis in action.

Jones preferred to play it safe, and Coach Stoddard's efforts to a signal drill and a dummy drill. The team in Mallory watched the team in these events while in his street clothes, and it was to look doubtful if he can play on Saturday. He will certainly suffer considerable bruise suffered in the Brown and Charlie Owsen was at the field in uniform, and ran one of the variety team.

player observance of the Eighteenth Amendment. He was well received through the West. There was a bit of bitterness in this observation, but during the regular season the Babe was decorated with the order of the wild raspberry in most of the cities in the American League. He intimated that it was a rather pleasant sensation to be greeted as a conquering hero once more.

Financial Rumors Abroad.

There are various rumors about as to the Babe's current financial condition. This, the Babe contends, is nobody's business but his own. He says that he will be able to winter without pleading for a popular subscription of the nature of the one about to be made for Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion. The Babe and Benny are among the biggest money makers in professional sports, but from all accounts are equally big spenders.

From the tone in which he spoke to his owners, Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Colonel Tillinghast L'Hommedieu Huston, the Babe is about to take a more serious view of baseball and life in general. The world's series battling average of .118 gave the Babe something to think about. The Yankees' champion home run hitters seemed to be leaving him.

Age Never Bothers Babe.

It is a subtle and elusive quality that coordination. It is something that cannot be acquired. It is born in an athlete, and when it starts to leave him it cannot be held. Ruth seemed to have it for ten years at least if he had taken his work more seriously and kept himself in the best of condition physically. But to Ruth there was no such thing as the possibility of getting older. He was one of the most prodigious of the professional athletes.

The Babe will report at the Yankee offices to-morrow and have an extended talk with the two Colonels. The test of the conversion for the most part will be the Eighteenth Amendment and how it can be best observed by professional athletes, particularly baseball players.

Col. Tillinghast L'Hommedieu Huston lost the foot-throwing contest with Col. Ruppert and must attend the opening of the Yankee Stadium with his upper lip entirely nude, while Col. Ruppert may have his upper lip festooned with any style mustache he may elect.

Needlinger, who ran the team at quarterback, and Jordan comprised the rest of the line. The line, with the exception of right end, was the same as that started the Brown game. Deaue was in Hulman's place on the right end of the line, with Eddy on the other flank. Ford and Eddy were the tackles; Cross and Crutchenback the guards; and Lovejoy snapped the ball back.

While the varsity went through their Light drill, the second varsity and the freshmen had it out for half an hour, but neither team scored.

Weather Forces Harvard to Call Off Mock Battle

Crimson Drill Held Down to Dummy Scrimmage.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK Herald.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—The so-called football scrimmage which the Harvard coaches had expected to stage for their varsity team and the scrubs on their stadium field this afternoon did not materialize. Rain fell most all day, and the field was a muddy sludge. Instead of a miniature battle Bob Fisher did the best he could with a "dummy" scrimmage, in which Tish plays were used by

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
PRINCETON, Nov. 7.—Bill Roper put the Princeton variety boxer eleven through the longest scrimmage of the season here this afternoon in preparation for the Harvard contest. The set-to continued for an hour and a quarter and was followed by a signal drill which did not cease until dark. Every regular was in uniform when the preliminary work got under way.

During the tussle with the scrubs, the variety scored four touchdowns while the Omelettea, using Harvard plays, retaliated with a touchdown late in the afternoon. It was the first scrimmage for the scrubs since the Princeton-Cambridge contest and they seemed to relish it. The scrubs kicked off to the variety at the start and soon after Willie Winstone received a short forward pass from Jack Cleaves and rushed across the goal line before he was downed. Ken Smith earned the additional point with a suc-

William F. Baker, owner of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, admitted today that he will not retain Irvin K. Wilhelm as manager of his team next year. He also denied that he is negotiating with Hugo Bezdek to take charge, as reported from State College, Pa.

Mr. Baker returned from a month's hunting trip and said he will go to Chicago to see the manager of the Cubs in the 1923 season. "I haven't been in touch with anybody and haven't been negotiating with Bezdek, but I've got to have a new manager and I don't know who he will be," he stated. He declined to say whether Bezdek will be considered for the job.

Wilhelm took charge of the Quakers during the season of 1921 and finished last, climbing out of the cellar to seventh place last season. He formerly was a pitcher and has been in major league baseball since 1905, except from 1914 to 1921. He first went with the Pittsburgh Pirates and then with Boston, Brooklyn, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Overhaul the variety and scrubs may get together, as Fisher still wants a little more action, but there will be nothing doing unless the field is in better shape than it was today.

The first team included both Owen and Clark. The latter went through the entire scrimmage at center and was fresh and smooth at the finish, while Owen was active on defense and seemed to have picked up his game.

The management announced today that the stadium field will be turned over to Princeton for practice Friday morning.

"Pink" Baker kicked off to the thrushes goal line and, following an exchange of punts, the varsity threatened the goal again, but the Omelettes recovered a fumble and punted out to safety. Jack Omelette, quarterback, led the 9 yard line and Watson from second on the fourth line plunge. Ken Smith licked another point.

Pullback Helwig came right back on the next kickoff with a ninety yard run and collected six points. He made three other touchdowns and kicked two goals for all of Iutherford's points and a 26 victory over Iutherford. Victory clinched the league championship.

The largest species caught by Attorney Dominguez weighed twenty-seven pounds, and put up an interesting battle against the force of the angler, who was using light tackle. "I know I have been fishing," Attorney Dominguez told the boatman, Capt. Edmundson. "But I had a lot of fun, and I am satisfied."
